Invitation for a Training Visit at the Freie Universität Berlin Participation in International Staff Training Week, June 26-30, 2023

Dear Prof. Shekhar,

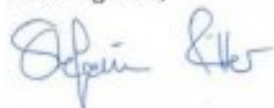

As the coordinator of Erasmus+ ICM at Freie Universität Berlin's International Office, I am pleased to issue a formal invitation to invite you to join Freie Universität Berlin's International Staff Training Week 2023, which will take place from June 26 to June 30, 2023 in Berlin.

During the Staff Training Week, you will participate in the program "Windows into Internationalization: Managing International Networks". Working in international relations, our international agendas, institutional strategies, and organizational particularities shape the way we structure and advance our international work. In cooperating with those outside of our institutions, especially in multilateral networks, it becomes harder to remain true to our own goals while in the same time negotiating common ground with others. During this program we will exchange good practice of multi-stakeholder management in international networks; discuss aspects of local, national, and international networks; learn about conflict resolution and strategy implementation in networks, and explore unique solutions to common problems.

The training mobility will be funded using Erasmus+ ICM grants that were awarded to FUB for the implementation of cooperation with Indian Higher Education Institutions. The grant is composed of a contribution to travel costs (820 €) as well as a daily allowance of 160 € for accommodation and living expenses for 7 days (5 mobility days plus 2 travel days).

We are very much looking forward to welcoming you in Berlin in June.

Best regards,

Stefanie Ritter

Panel I

Discussant: Philip R. Conway (Durham University)

Abhishek Choudhary (University of Delhi):

Emancipation as Security, Dignity as Emancipation

The paper has two-fold purpose: it seeks to bring emancipation at the fore and/but it seeks to redefine emancipation. The paper begins by addressing the question: why are certain alternate narratives marginalised and silenced in International Relations? Alternate narratives imply voices and perspectives other than the mainstream narrative articulated by individuals and communities in society. The discipline of IR undermines any effort of engaging with certain alternate narratives and due to this limited ontological stance, it narrows its scope, applicability and reliability. This further facilitates the perpetuation and sustenance of exclusion and maintenance of hierarchies. The paper focuses on alternate narratives of select caste-based minorities in India that are excluded from the dominant narrative. It locates the perpetuation of exclusion by identifying sustenance of 'epistemic violence' at two levels: first through colonial practices where caste was solidified through naïve archival process; second by the hegemonic Hindu social order that denied the so-called low caste people of any agency.

Theoretically, the paper is rooted in critical-theoretical understanding but seeks to redefine the idea of emancipation. It is asserted that despite its novelty, the Welsh/Aberystwyth school of Critical Security Studies is also Eurocentric. The contours of 'emancipation as security' ignore the social bearings of marginalisation. Therefore, it becomes pertinent to redefine what emancipation means. The paper favours referential homegrown theorizing to present the idea of 'dignity as emancipation'. It uses the writings of Ambedkar and Periyar alongside the untold stories from the margins to redefine emancipation and counter social hierarchies.

Cornelia Baciu (University of Copenhagen):

A Post-Critique Theory of Emancipatory Orders

Although critical scholarship has promised the emergence of emancipatory orders, these have not yet materialized, because, while emancipation requires change, orders have changed little. Critical theory has become a victim of its own success, despite its philosophical underpinnings 'upon which truth politics could thrive' (Jahn 2021). While critical IR has succeeded in broadening the meta-theoretical boundaries of the discipline through establishing new reflexive epistemologies and modes of theorizing, critical theory was perceived to have failed to provide a coherent scholarly intervention, despite its commitment to emancipation (Schmid 2023). Seeking to address this critique to critical theory, this paper aims to unearth the challenges of critical scholarship in establishing stable, anti-hierarchical orders: do we need a post-critique 'turn' in IR?

Mapping the critiques to critical scholarship, the paper conceptualizes the contours of a post-critique theory in IR. It applies a metaphysical component, arguing that, critical politics have not paid sufficient attention to the constitutive nature of orders, which is, paradoxically, provided by the philosophical underpinnings of traditional critical IR theory of the Frankfurt School (Benjamin 1940; Horkheimer 1937; Honneth 1986). A post-critique theoretical approach of emancipatory orders builds upon the relations of co-constitution in the emergence and change of orders. These processes are co-constituted by four elements that are intertwined: 1) memory and history; 2) knowledge; 3) practice; 4) subjective rationality. A post-critical theory of emancipatory orders needs to consider the productive link between orders and each of these four elements separately.

Sub: Invitation for keynote address at our NAAC National Seminar.

Respected Madam,

We are delighted to say that NAAC has acceded our request to sponsor a One day National Seminar on NEP, and we are taking the opportunity to invite you for keynote address at the seminar. The object of the seminar is to enlighten various Grant-in-Aid institutions, on the subject "Challenges and impact of NEP on Grant-in-Aid Colleges".

This Seminar will be held at our college on 19th Oct-2022. We will be honoured, if you consent, and share your experiences and insights. Hopefully several Research papers will be presented at the Seminar, and its proceedings will be published.

OUR COLLEGE

Ours is the only all-women's College in the entire District. Established over 50 years ago, it is set in pristine surroundings and run by the SardarVallabhbhai Samaj Seva Trust, a Trust established as living memorial to Sardar Saheb in his home town.

Our College is proud to say that it caters to the underprivileged classes of the society: educationally, socially and economically. And in all these classes, women are at the greatest disadvantage of all! Yet, many of our girls have beaten all these "privileged" students to gain Gold Medals at the University, topping the entire student body of the University!

A lot of this credit goes to our faculty: apart from working hard in and outside the classroom, they also spend most of their entire summer vacation moving around the villages surrounding the city of Nadiad and motivate the students passing the 12th Standard to continue with their higher studies, preventing drop out. As a consequence, we have nearly 200 students each year, coming from over 160 villages around Nadiad! They have to spend a lot of time reaching the college, yet their attendance is much higher than one finds in normal. They have to take FIVE different modes of transport to reach the College (and back), yet they manage this great feat! Recognizing our capabilities, our University [Sardar Patel University, the best University in Gujarat] has also established a Post- Graduate Centre at our College. This activity has also been noted by the press, including The Times of India.

When teachers went looking for 'missing' girl students

Nadiad College Brings Back 750 Dropouts

Saeed.Khan@timesgroup.com

Ahmedabad: Meena (21) and her mother Leenaben Darbar (42) appeared for the BA fourth semester exam last week at Surajba Mahila Arts College (SMAC) at Nadiad. The mother-daughter duo from Uttarsanda village in central Gujarat had abandoned education after class 12

A unique practice adopted by Surajba college teachers to track down girls who dropped out of higher education led them to Meena's house. On finding that mother Leena, an anganwadi teacher, too had to shun college for motherhood, the lecturers convinced both mother and daughter to join college and complete higher studies.

Over a dozen faculty members of SMAC began this experiment in 2008 and have been able to successfully bring back 750-odd girls to college. The project was triggered by an alarm over dwindling number of girls taking admission in the college.

Women's college gets proactive on dropouts

TIMES NEWS NETWORK

Ahmedabad: The management and faculty members of Surajba Mahila Arts College at Nadiad have now gone a step ahead, with an early intervention.

Apart from tracing dropout, the lecturers have started identifying girls who failed the board exam. "We trace them by contacting schools, help them clear the boards and bring them to college for higher education," said Bhavnaben Mehta, senior-most of the faculty members, all of who don't take summer vacations. They prefer spending time in the villages of Kheda district scouting for potential students.

This initiative began after UGC's National Assessment and Accreditation Council rated the college in the 'B' category. The constantly decreasing student numbers was also a worry for the management. "Hence we decided to reach out to students, especially those who leave studies. There are various issues, but over the years our teachers have learned how to deal with them," said college principal Hasit Mehta.

In the beginning, the management took the help of college students to find dropouts. The faculty members later chalked out their methods and came up with various other tactics to trace such girls. They targeted all schools in the districts for information. Later, the lecturers began addressing school students trying to convince them to continue their studies after schooling. Students who have failed a couple of subjects in the boards are also identified and targeted.

Approaching all schools in the district and revising the database have become a routine exercise for the lecturers. One faculty member, B G Dodia, was near Chaklasi town. "I identified 49 girls in villages near Chaklasi. We will counsel students and parents. If they have economic problems, we will try to solve them. In case of social issues, we will try to convince the elders," professor Dodia said.

'Teachers' hard work has paid off'

Ahmedabad: Faculty members say the project to track girls, who had dropped out was triggered by an alarm over the dwindling number of girls taking admission in the college. Through students, lecturers first sought details about girls who completed HSC but did not join college. Contacts in hand, lecturers then undertook the tough exercise of reaching every such girl's house, persuading parents, helping them tide over economic and social issues stacked against sending girls of remote villages to college.

Six years later, college principal Hasit Mehta says, "The hard work of lecturers has paid off as more girls are now empowered through education. In 2008-09, we were able to mobilize students 61 villages around Nadiad to join college. Now, students from 164 villages study in our college. Nearly 35% of these students had left their studies after clearing class 12." TNN

Subject: Invitation for the Hindu Education Conference @ WHC 2023, November 24-26, Bangkok, Thailand.

Dear Professor Yogesh Singh ji,

Namaskar!

You are cordially invited as a Speaker to the 5th Hindu Educational Conference, which will be held in Bangkok, over on November 24, 25, and 26, 2023 at the world famous IMPACT-Muang-Thong-Thani Center. The Conference is a part of World Hindu Congress 2023 (WHC 2023) which will expectedly be attended by 3000+ participants from 65+ countries. Details of WHC-2023 are available at <https://www.worldhinducongress.org/events/whc-2023>

Hindus have always excelled in education at all levels across the world. In Bharat, Hindus have setup as many as 12,000+ higher educational institutions post 1947. Despite these accomplishments significant challenges have impeded our civilization's resurgence. These include; lack of indigenous perspectives in courses being taught, limited scholarship in area of Hindu studies, lack of innovation in curricula, and absence of network of Hindu-scholarship. In context of private educational sector of Bharat, these challenges also include; lack of quality faculty members, extreme pressures from regulatory agencies, operational inefficiencies, lack of standards which educational institutions can confirm to, and discriminatory regulations including the RTE.

Hindu educationists from all over the world will come together at the Conference to address these challenges. These would include college and university trustees, administrators, owners, directors, faculty members, policy makers, and publishers. Discussions at the Conference would cover topics as diverse as; how to run quality educational institutions, formulating educational policies, analysis of academic frameworks in vogue for analyzing Bharat, creation and networking of Hindu scholarship, development of curricula which is relevant to societal needs, faculty training, enhancing operational efficiency, and sharing of resources.

This Conference is being organized by Hindu Education Board. In past, the Board has organized several such Conferences, which have been very warmly received by people like you. Please refer to the attached sheet for viewing the list of speakers in such conferences. The Board has also developed policy recommendations for Bharat's higher education system, and has participated in hearings on Bharat's New Education Policy, and New Language Policy.

I look forward to meeting you at the conference. Also, if you have any questions about this, please call me at +91-955-927-0306, or send me an email to nachiketa_t@hotmail.com.
